

KINETIC DISSENT/I Will Fight No More Forever (Metal Mind Productions) I remembered this when it came out and I didn't think much of the band at that time, but after getting a 2nd chance to check them out, my opinion has changed. This is some really good thrash music with a touch of progressive to it. I think the band was hard for some to get into the 1st time, yours truly included. The band play thrash metal with a melodic edge and also some Faith No More and Mordred into the mix. The vocals are clean and are a little like Faith No More, but they work for this band. I guess at the time people didn't want something that was different and not of the norm. This is a really diamond in the rough release so to speak and is well worth checking out. Info:
