Review by Diana Saenger

True music fans who do not already own this incredible 5-disc history of music chronicled in the TV series originally broadcast worldwide between 1976-80, need to order this DVD immediately.

The TV shows – not on this CD – included amazing interviews with noted musicians, who talk about themselves, other musicians and sometimes their meetings between each other. To hear and see these memories live is an incredible way to relive musical history of the 21st century.

This awesome collection is credited to celebrated journalist and film director Tony Palmer who in the 1970s documented the Story of Popular Music with film interviews of past and present musicians. Although All You Need Is Love was broadcast worldwide between 1976 and 1981, this is the first time it has appeared on DVD.

The All You Need Is Love boxed set contains all 17 episodes – and 17 hours worth – of the series on 5 discs. Music genres featured include everything from ragtime and jazz to swing and folk music. Interviews – that Palmer captured from other interviews – provide hours upon hours of amazing footage with such greats as Jimi Hendrix, Eric Clapton, Benny Goodman, The Beach Boys, Jerry Lee Lewis, Bo Diddley, Tina Turner, Frank Zappa and more. The artists not only play music, but discuss various aspects of it at length, with some surprising revelations by some.

All you Need Is Love is distributed by MDV Visual. There is some nudity and violence in some of the sequences so parents should be warned to watch when children are not around. This is truly a one-of-a-kind production of musical artist history.

Synopsis From MDV Visual - Popular music is now an essential part of our lives - yet we know comparatively little about it - where it came from how it developed how it has influenced or been influenced by social change. Today the popular music industry controls billions of dollars; it has a greater revenue than the combined efforts of cinema theatre and sport and all the other entertainment industries put together. This critically acclaimed TV series originally broadcast worldwide between 1976-80 is featured here in its entirety - 17 episodes contained on 5 discs encompassing ragtime blues jazz vaudeville the musical folk swing country and western rock n' roll and beyond.
